

The Disturbance: is the first VR experience of the official Police Training Simulator. Experienced Officers can use the simulator to get the training they need to support their own area of expertise. This is set as the default. The game can be used as directed by the instructor, completed after the training session. The game can also be used as a sort of entry level level for new users who get the chance to try VR for the first time. This game brings the fundamentals of Police Work into virtual reality.

The game puts you face to face with many aspects of the Police exercise that a normal Virtual Reality game doesn't give you. What have we got? Using new modern VR technology we've now introduced a couple of new features. Voice chat is now available! You can communicate with your Partner in the VR environment. Each user has a unique partner for the game. You also have the chance to synchronise the timestamp on both of you. What We've Done: The police Response VR: Disturbance has been specifically built with larger audiences in mind. Being able to sync with the official police training videos to make it easier to follow and place. What else do we have? You can also now see a large target that will allow you to easily aim your weapons at your target if you so desire. Another feature to help guide you as a novice user. You will now see a timeline on the right hand side of the VR environment to help you in your progress during the course. We have also worked to improve the speech recognition system so you can be

 - You will know if your own cards have been destroyed and are and need to be destroyed, all damage may be effectively cancelled, however you will not know if opponent's cards have been destroyed and will require further play.
 - All score points and all victory conditions will still apply but there may be the chance to gain further victory from additional combat
 - Blindly choosing a card may cause them to miss an attack and lose back to the opponent.

Expert The make-up bag is an essential tool for the day-to-day businessman who, like you, goes on frequent business trips to various locations. Those days where you are out of immediate orbit are where the magic in the bag comes into play. You can use your makeup bag for many things: to hide your massive pimple, to fix your severely-damaged eyelids, and to totally transform yourself into another person. The tricks are endless! Although the magicians don't like to say it, makeup for the face and body is more than just concealer, foundation, and a toothbrush. It's a combination of art, science, and psychology that allows a woman to change her face and body into a different person. After all, how you look reflects on yourself, your situation, your finances and your confidence. By using a few simple products, magically, you can transform yourself and have fun while you get a face lift. Much of this magic is contained in the makeup bag. It's your makeup bag that most people don't realize can be used as a tool to change your look and feel! First, you should really understand the basic fundamentals. You start with a clean makeup bag. Product samples must be neatly organized within the makeup bag. Your skin care products should fall within each other. The reason for this is that their order will help coordinate your skin care with your look. As the elements of your magic kit come together, you can use them in creating the magic "before" and "after" look. The Magic Bag Makeup Techniques Let's get to the magic! The first thing to do is to separate your makeup bag into three sections. You want your skin care products at the front of your bag. Next, you want your favorite mascara, eyeliner, and foundation/concealer at the back of your makeup bag. In a "pro" form, you should have four products per makeup bag: two eye shadows, one primer and one corrector. Location of your makeup bag varies person to person. However, you can spot the organization I described above as best as I can. You will want the “pro” products in the back of your bag. The order for this mix could be around the order listed above. Color should be used for the main purpose for the item. For example, I use a light warm pallet for
